MONDAY, APRIL 25. 1743.

Since our last arrived a Mail from Holland.

Petersburg, April 6.

HE Court is very desirous of a Peace with Sweden, in order to have the more Leisure to regulate other Matters. It is generally believed here, that the King of Prussia enters entirely into the VIEWS of our Court, and that he will oblige the Duke of Mecklenburg to desist from his Design of assisting the Swedes against us, or promoting a Scission in the Dyer, and, consequently, a Civil War in that Kingdom. Count Oginiski, who lately arrived from Poland, has presented a Memorial in the Name of the Nobility of Courland, setting forth, That they suffer extremely by the present Disorder of their Government, and for want of the Presence of their Duke. That the Election of M. de Biron was very just and regular, and his Deprivation must be attended with such Consequences as will render all subsequent Elections precarious. That therefore they humbly beseech her Imperial Majesty to set their Duke at Liberty, and restore him to the Possession of his Dominions; which will not be more pleasing to him, or advantageous to his Subjects, than glorious to her Majesty, and conducive to the Honour and Welfare of the Russian Empire.

Stockholm, April 9. In order, if possible, to satisfy all Parties, Three Gentlemen were sent Express with the same Dispatches to the King's Plenipotentiaries at Abo in Finland. The first of these was Baron Scheffer, who went by the common Road; the second M. Broman, who went North about; and the third M. Graman, an Officer in the Navy, who embarked on board a Frigate. The Design of all this was to convince all the Orders in the Dyer, that the utmost Dispatch should be given to these Negotiations. After the setting out of these Expresses arrived a Courier from Abo, whose Dispatches were addressed to the Secret Committee; who, when they had perused them, sent a Message to the House of Nobles, importing, that the Russian Plenipotentiaries had explain'd themselves in such favourable Terms, as gave Hopes of concluding speedily a good Peace; but that as present the Circumstances of Affairs made it necessary to preserve, as to these Negotiations, the utmost Secrecy. That, however, to cut off all Suspicion of Delay, they had prepared, and were going to send away an Ultimatum to the Plenipotentiaries at Abo. When the Houses of the Clergy and Burghers were convened, in order to concur with the House of Nobles on this Head, the Order of Peasants sent them a Message to this Effect, That they hoped they were now assembled in order finally to settle the Succession; since if they were not, it was their fix'd Resolution to desert the Dyer immediately, and return home. To this the Nobles, Clergy, and Burghers, answer'd unanimously, The Order of Peasants have no Right to disturb or break in on the other Orders of the Kingdom; and if their Deputies persist in this Resolution, they shall not be able to reach home, before their respective Constituents receive a just Account of their Conduct. This firm Answer has had a good Effect, and we hear no more of a Secession. The Council of War have passed Sentence on the Generals, but they have appealed to the Dyer.

P. S. Baron Scheffer return'd this Morning, and M. Broman is just arrived; we know not exactly the Answers they have brought, but they have told their Friends that Things go on well, and that we shall soon have a Peace. The Russian Officers taken in the Island of Aland, were presented to the King by Veldt-Marshall Hamilton. The Town's-People send the common Men all Sorts of Refreshments in Plenty.

Copenhagen, April 23. The vacant Company in his Royal Highness's Regiment is given to the Sieur Windt, First Lieutenant of Grenadiers. Our Fleet is ready to sail, and only waits for the King's last Orders. The Recruits from Norway arrive daily.

Dantzick, April 16. Two Swedish Frigates, each of 30 Guns and 100 Men, arrived some Days ago in the Road before this City; upon which a Russian Man of War retired into our Harbour, having quitted a Swedish Prize that he had just taken. Another Russian Vessel ran up the River as far as she could, to get out of reach. But our Magistrates, to secure the Freedom of our Navigation, have prevailed on the Swedish Captains and the Russian Agent to come to this Agreement; viz. That the Russian Vessel should not put to Sea any more this Year, and that her Sails and Cannon should be laid up in the Arsenal; on which Condition the Swedes are immedately to retire. P. S. Since the making this Agreement, two other Swedish Frigates are arrived before our Port.

Vienna, April 15. The Day before Yesterday the Queen performed the Ceremony of washing the Feet of 12 poor Women, among whom one was upwards of 100, and four between 90 and 100. The Duke, Co-Regent, performed the same Office to 12 poor Men, one of which was 130, another 104, and four more above 90. The Empress Dowager also washed the Feet of 12 poor Women, whose Age made together 1055; those washed by the Queen in 1737 and the poor Men's Ages amounted to 1077.

Prince Charles set out Post between two and three this Morning for the Army, which was occasioned by Advice, that the French were assembling an Army in the Neighbourhood of Amberg, in order to succour Egra. The first Column of 4000 Croats are arrived in our Neighbourhood, and the three other Columns are also in full March towards Bavaria, only Part of these are to return in the Winter.

Dresden, April 21. It does not appear that our Court has entered into any Engagements as to the present War, notwithstanding we have increased the Troops of this Electorate to 40,000 Men. Our Advices from Egra bring us nothing of Consequence, except that the Garrison had lately made a Sailey, and brought in several Fat Oxen, and some Waggon laden with Provision; upon which Prince Lobkowitz ordered several Peasants to be hang'd, who were convicted of being accessory to this, by selling these Provisions, and carrying them to the Wood, from whence a Detachment from the Town brought them.

N. B. This Article, taken from their Gazette, is of great Importance, because it seems to contradict the following Account.

Extract of a Letter from Nuremberg, April 23.

'The Expedition for the Relief of Egra has succeeded to our Wish. Lieutenant-General de Chaila, who commanded a Detachment of 14,000 Men, re-visited Egra on the 19th without Resistance. General Festitz with his Hussars retired so precipitately, that they left behind them their Magazines and Baggage-Wagons. After changing the Garrison, he marched towards Stadt-am-hoff, and from thence he has Orders to march to Straubingen. This is a very important Point gained, and we apprehend it will stop the Queen of Hungary's Journey.'

Menz, April 23. Yesterday the Election came on here for the filling up the Vacancy of this Archbischoprick and Electorate. At Seven in the Evening all the Troops of the Garrison were drawn up in the Avenues from the Palace to the Cathedral, called the Dome, where the Chapter assembled about Ten, and unanimously conferr'd on Count Ostein, their High Treasurer, the Dignities above-mentioned. The excessive bad Weather of the Day very much interrupted the Order and Magnificence of the usual Procession on this Occasion; the only regular Ceremony without Doors was that of the Ringauers. These People are Subjects of this Electorate, but have some very particular and great Privileges; among the rest, on the Demise of an Elector, they take Possession of the Palace, and have a Right to retain it as long as the Vacancy lasts; but as that has generally been a great while, and the attendant Expences to them heavy, they only keep Guard there two or three Days before the Election. When the new chosen Elector comes near, they shut up the Gates of the Court Yard, and their two chief Officers, called the Burgrave and Vice-dome, go up to the State Coach with the Charter of their Privileges in their Hands; at the same time they tender an Oath to him, that he shall religiously observe their said Charter and Privileges, which were granted to them at a Time when two Electors were chosen by a Division in the Chapter; one of which being soon after drove out of the Residence, found Refuge with these Ringauers, and the Death of the other happening in a short time, was by them restored to, and confirmed in his Dignity.

Neuwied, April 24. His Excellency the Earl of Stair having pass'd by Bonn in his Way hither, was most graciously received there by the Elector of Cologne, and arrived at this Place Yesterday in perfect Health, notwithstanding the bad Weather and Roads. Marshal Neipperg is already here, and the Duke d'Arcenbergh is expected every Hour.

Hague, April 30. The States of Holland, which separated on Saturday last, are to meet again on Wednesday the 15th of May next. The Town of Groningue has given her Consent to the Proposition of Holland for the March of the 20,000 Men; and it is hoped the Members of the Omme Landen, which make out Part of that Province, will also be brought to give their Assent to that Measure. In the mean time, Zealand has not yet given any Answer upon the said Proposition; but it is reported that Province will soon do it. According to the Letters which arrived this Morning from Flanders, the Hessian Troops were to march towards the Rhine on the 9th or 10th of next Month.

Hague, May 1. Private Letters from Franckfort of the 25th ult. say, that Egra is relieved, and the Austrians successively the Plachits. It is however a little suspicious, that neither the Imperial nor French Ministers have any Express about it. On the contrary, the last Letters from Ratisbon say, that part of the French Army had been beaten by Prince Lobkowitz, and that Marshal Broglie's Son had been wounded and made Prisoner. Nay, the same Letters add, that there had been a sharper Action at Burglengenfeldt on the 17th ult. in which the French, in the Beginning, had considerably the Advantage. But the Austrians receiving continual Supplies, they were constrained at last to retire with the Loss of some Hundred Men. The Retreat of the French towards Straubingen (which is on all Hands admitted) gives some Credit to this Account.
